

SINGAPORE KENNEL CLUB

Obedience Judge: Mr Patrick Wong

(Pre Novice, Novice, Intermediate, Open & Utility Class)

Mr Patrick Wong is a renowned professional dog trainer in Singapore.

He started trialling since the first Singapore Kennel Club obedience trial in 1987 and has been supporting the sport of dog obedience competition.

He has produced the most dogs in this sport and his students have won countless achievements including Obedience Dog of the Year & Utility Dog of the Year titles.

His winning students/handlers are as young as 6 years of age.

Patrick has also trained many breeds which are not commonly seen (or deem as not trainable) in obedience competitions. This breeds includes: Tibetan Mastiff, British Bulldog, Afghan Hound, Beagles, Chow Chow, Shiba Inu and even dogs that are physically handicap in hearing.

Patrick served on the SKC obedience committee since 2008. His contributions span a wide array of progressive guidelines and procedural mandates for improved obedience trial procedures.

He has also been instrumental in conducting “Good Canine Citizen” and obedience courses, public obedience demonstrations, as well as seminars to promote the sport of obedience training.

Patrick has also spearheaded many obedience trials with record-breaking entries in Singapore.

The Singapore Kennel Club is proud and honored to have Mr Wong as not only a prolific dog training entrepreneur but, also a highly experienced obedience trial trainer to judge the SKC’s 105th Obedience trial.
